OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Risk Off sentiment plagued the market as political turmoil sizzle across the globe. In the middle east, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, Egypt said they will suspend air and sea travel to Qatar, and close overland border crossings with its Gulf neighbor as well. Bahrain gave Qatari diplomats 48 hours to leave, while Saudi Arabia gave Qatari citizens two weeks to leave. In retaliation, Qatar airways has suspended all flights to Saudi. Meanwhile in the US, all eyes are on the possible links of the Trump campaign and inner groups with Russia.

US economic data came out mixed. The ADP Employment Change was a bit of a positive surprise, spiking to 253,000 jobs vs. an expected 180,000, and the US unemployment rate printed at 4.3%, lower than the expected of 4.4%. But both Payrolls and wage growth were weaker. Nonfarm Payrolls for April was expected to come in at 182,000, but they came in at 138,000 instead. To make matters worse, March's number was revised lower by 37,000 to 174,000. With this, US 10 year treasury continued to slide down to as low as 2.14% even if market expects another rate hike this June 15, 2017.

ROP prices were higher for the month due to Lower benchmark US bond yields resulting from a weaker than expected May nonfarm payrolls report led to a reassessment of a third fed rate hike this year. Market has priced in a Fed rate hike at June 15, 2017 FOMC meeting. US bond yields remain as key driver for ROP price action as economic fundamentals remain steady.
