Sharpe Ratio (Risk Free Rate = 0.1522%):	0.15

Volatility is a measure of fluctuation of the NAVpu. Higher volatility means higher potential for gains or losses. Duration measures the sensitivity of the portfolio to interest rate movements. The higher the duration, the more the NAVpu will change with interest rate fluctuation. The Sharpe Ratio is a measure of risk-adjusted return. The higher the Sharpe, the higher the return per unit of risk. Risk-free rate used to compute the Sharpe ratio is the 1yr US TBill rate.

Fund Manager's Report

The global markets focused its attention still on the future of US monetary policy in February as Janet Yellen takes the helm of the Federal Reserve. Yellen, in her first appearance as FED chair in front of the US Senate Banking Committee reiterated a continuity in the implementation of the current monetary policy from where Ben Bernanke left off. She further stressed that the rate of tapering of the current bond purchases is not in a pre-set course and that the progress of normalization in the policy will be dependent on the evolution of US economic data. She further added that the FED is sticking to its dual mandate of price stability and maximum employment.

On the US data front, data continued to print weaker signals on the state of the US recovery which the market and the FED attributes to the occurrence of bad weather being experienced in the US. As a result, US Treasury yields continued to move lower from the belly to the long end by an average of 10bps with the 10y UST trading from a range of 2.78% to 2.60%. On the ROP front, yields fell by 20bps tracking closely the movements in USTs. Markets are expected to be range bound until the next FOMC meeting on March 18-19, 2014.
