Fund Manager's Report

The Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEi) barely moved last month as July reflected a 0.3% gain after breaking the 7,000 threshold before its consolidation later in the month. The average trading volumes were low this month heading into the ghost month as there were no major catalysts that pushed Philippine equities to have a sustained climb. The telcos were up as Globe and PLDT reach their dividend ex-dates. June inflation had a slight decline to 4.4% from the 4.5% in May and infrastructure spending is up 25% YoY as the government attempts to address the delays in their projects.

The property sector continued its decline from last month (-1.44%) along with holding firms (-1.04%) while the four remaining sectors of Services (+2.29%), Industrial (+1.28%), Mining and Oil (1.06%), and Financials (+0.17%) buoyed the index.
