Fund Manager's Report

The country's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) grew by 6.4 percent year-on-year, on the back of an 8.5 percent growth from the services sector. The growth was also supported by strong household consumption, which grew by 6.6 percent. The GDP figure was much better than the widely-expected 4.3 percent. Increased fiscal spending to spur growth, as well as the government's budget surplus, boosted renewed speculation on the country's possible credit ratings upgrade. This follows Moody's Investors Service's recent upgrade of its economic outlook on the Philippines from 'Stable' to 'Positive.'

Inflation ranged from 2.9 to 3.0 percent despite crude prices trading down due to negative sentiment from the Eurozone and the US economy. While the recent GDP growth might indicate inflationary pressure, the BSP is still likely to keep rates unchanged.

Peso bond yields steepened last May. Short-term papers traded higher, pushing yields down by an average of 3 to 4 basis points, while longer-term securities actually had higher yields.
