Fund Manager's Report

October inflation was 2.9%, lower than the 3.2% market expectation. This was still faster than September's 2.7%. Year-to-date inflation average for 2013 is 2.8%. The BSP revised its inflation forecasts upward for this year and next. Inflation is seen to average 3.2% this year and 4.5% in 2014, from 3.0% and 4.0%, respectively.

BTR rejected all bids for the 5 YR bond auction with market players bidding at an average of 3%-3.25%. The lack of fresh supply kept banks constantly on the look out for outlets to deploy their excess cash despite a slight up tick on inflation.

Beginning of November expected more flows (P400B) coming out from SDA. However, yields continued to inch up as market players remain defensive and light as concerns on QE tapering plagued the market once again. With limited activity in the peso bond market and a depreciating peso currency, yields were up by 15-20 bps across the curve from a month ago due to profit taking as data from the US point to improved economic activity. Market players, will continue to watch developments in the US for further direction.
