OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

After a strong March performance, we saw April reflect a month on month drop of 1.4% as a combination of unremarkable earnings and election jitters. These two have long been seen as the catalysts of the Philippine market in 2016 with the potential to drive the market higher or lower depending on whether earnings surprise on the upside and if the election is perceived as clean with a new leader that can execute to continue the positive growth from the current administration. The market may look to wait and see who the new president will be and what their plans are before making further moves. However, we expect volatility to persist and are hence maintaining our general strategy of staying nimble by being overweight on cash and concentrating on more liquid names.
